Scouting + Intel Notes

HM+

Roles: Defender, Versatility, Scorer, Mid-Range Game, Finisher, Rebounder, High Motor, BBIQ, Connector
Projection Range: HM+ (confidence level: 80%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Harvard-Westlake (CA): 32mp, 7p (3-7 FG, 1-2 3FG, 0-0 FT), 7r (2oreb), 5a, to

vs. Sunnyslope (AZ): 30mp, 11p (3-6 FG, 2-4 3FG, 3-3 FT), 4r, 3a, 0to, 1b

vs. Duncanville (TX): 25mp, 9p (4-9 FG, 1-5 3FG, 0-0 FT), 10r (3oreb), 4a, 2to, 3b

- Looks 6'6"+ now. Continues to grow and fill out. Elite length, previously measured a +6.5 wingspan over the summer.
- Fluid athlete that is very much still growing into his body. Doesn't have a a *ton* of pop yet, but you get the sense that he will develop some more explosiveness as he develops the body. Still barely 16.
- Out-of-this-world physical and athletic foundation. You cannot draw it up much better than this for a modern guard/wing.
- Needs to improve his body language, clearly was frustrated that he wasn't getting offensive usage here. There was a sense that he was in full attack mode and wanted to show his stuff, but wasn't activated enough for it. Can see him growing into an alpha, long term...
- Pretty impressive passing vision and feel (especially in the teeth of the D), but is still developing the ability to pull it off consistently. Did a nice job of taking care of the rock, here – two games with 0 TO and just 2 total TOs in 87 MP on the week.
- Showing more and more polish as a self-creator, with improved footwork and rhythm to his game.
- Shooting mechanics have evolved with the body. Shoots it a bit over his head and he gets so much elevation that he will be really hard to contest on J's, which feels intentional (especially with the KD idolization). Sequencing works, shoots a soft ball (but the rotation could improve).
- 1-2 dribble pull-up game has continued to improve. His 12-17 foot PUJ has become a legit weapon. Looking to self create now with turnarounds, and clearly has put a ton of work into this (as it wasn't even something he flashed over the summer, but now looks like a legit tool).
- Can fall in love with C&S and PUJ looks a bit too often. Needs to learn to better leverage his tools to get sh*t done closer to the paint.
- Still can do the utility guy things he is great at as a glue guy + connector that can guard and rebound, but continues to move towards those high usage traits that could make him special.

- Uses his length well to chip in on the glass. Fights for position, too, despite being physically weaker than most guys. Especially felt his presence on the defensive glass, this week.
- Absurd potential on the defensive end. Already contains penetration at a high level. Length causes a ton of problem for opponents on his contests. Just oozing with defensive prowess.
- Competes defensively, plays with something to prove at times. Not “too cool” for this end in any facet.

Bottom Line: Absolutely enamored with his upside. Feels like he hasn’t even begun to scratch the surface. Think he could really be special... I haven’t seen 3 prospects with better upside as it stands in 2027. Wasn’t getting the ball much, but it never impacted his effort level... even though he was frustrated and let it show with his body language.

Questions:

- Just how tall will he grow?
- How will the wiring continue to evolve?

Roles: Rim Protector, Defender, Stretch Big, Rim Runner, Rebounder, Versatility, Slasher, Scorer
Projection Range: HM+ (confidence level: 90%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 27mp, 15p (3-10 FG, 0-2 3FG, 9-12 FT), 9r (2oreb), 1a, 4to, 6b, 1s
vs. Wasatch (UT): 23mp, 18p (7-13 FG, 0-2 3FG, 4-5 FT), 10r (5oreb), 0a, 3to, 2s

- Long and fluid athlete built for basketball. Potentially in-between two positions as a 4.5, long term, but has the length and athleticism to play both spots at the next level as he gets stronger.
- Demands the ball, wants physicality. Aggressive with his touches.
- Moves really well in the open court, graceful rim runner.
- Can play above the rim with ease, great hands too. Offers plus value as a halfcourt lob catcher and roller.
- Legit upside as a stretch big. Even showed some stuff OTD (1-2 dribbles), this week and hunted them rather frequently.. Didn’t have success per the box score (0-4 3FG), but the stroke looked solid. 13-17 from the FT line helps back that up, too. Fine bet to be a floor stretcher long term.

- Attacks the rim with some physicality. Willed himself to the line.
- Traveled a lot, but can handle it pretty damn well for his size in the HC and transition.
- Net-positive on the defensive end. Offers a lot as a shot blocker for this level, but is more than just a rim protector.
- Gives great effort and plays fairly disciplined as a post defender. His combination of length and mobility can really give opponents fits with his degree of switchability. Monster upside defensively with how he moves.
- Off ball disruption is prevalent with his length and ability to blow up plays in the gaps.
- Impacted the glass on both ends, quick to the ball and can high point it above his competition. Made efforts in and out of his area.

Bottom Line: Brings tremendous athletic and physical tools to the frontcourt, and positively impacts games in a variety of ways on both ends. Had to create for himself here a bit more than is optimal, perhaps, but the tools, skill foundation, and two-way versatility is enough to give him a legit chance to be a one-and-done.

Questions:

- Ability to make others better? Can he grow into a big playmaker?

Roles: Versatility, Scorer, Creator, BBIQ, Defender, Slasher, Finisher
Projection Range: HM+ (confidence level: 100%)

Stats (1 GP):

vs. Faith Family (TX): 29mp, 23p (7-12 FG, 1-3 3FG, 8-9 FT), 10r (1oreb), 4a, 2to, 1b

Bottom Line: Appears to be all of 6'8" now. Prototypical NBA wing frame. Outlier mover and body control. Functional handle that could still be tightened up further. Great passing feel – made an array of impressive reads here in the HC. Fluid shooting mechanics and a versatile shooting profile. High-level PUJ threat. Upside to be a monster defender with his size, length, fluidity, and ground coverage. Not much else to write at this point about AJ vs. high school competition.

[REDACTED]
Roles: Mid-Range Game, Finisher, Toughness, Versatility, Rebounder, Brute, BBIQ, Connector, Glue Guy, High Motor, Slasher, Rim Runner, Defender
Projection Range: HM+ (confidence level: 95%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Harvard-Westlake (CA): 31mp, 14p (6-20 FG, 1-6 3FG, 1-1 FT), 12r (3oreb), 5a, 3to, 2b

vs. Sunnyslope (AZ): 28mp, 27p (13-17 FG, 1-2 3FG, 0-2 FT), 10r, 9a, 6to, 3b

vs. Duncanville (TX): 28mp, 25p (11-16 FG, 0-1 3FG, 3-3 FT), 16r (4oreb), 7a, 6to, 1b, 1s

- Elite physical and athletic traits, of course. Will have very little issue scaling to the CBB level from this standpoint, beyond ready.
- Powerful athlete with great body control. Impressive second and third jump. Just an absolute monster to deal with at this level. Very functionally strong. Defenders bounce off him.
- Plus-motor. Multiple effort guy. Status has not impacted his approach over the years.
- Great teammate, uplifting others, being a leader with his voice and approach. Positive, but competitive presence.
- Has some point forward traits. Comfortable handling in the open court. Will grab a d-board and push.
- Turned it over quite a bit on travels here (which were called VERY tightly), but generally was smart with the ball and provides a positive passing presence.
- Really good interior touch as a finisher, but still seems to just throw it at the rim from time to time.
- Has always had some shooting touch, but the mechanics need continued tweaking. Shot is pretty flat. Will also miss L-R. Seems to have a couple horrid misses every game. He was doing a sort of push shot (low elbow, never got to 90°) on his free throws and 3pt shots, and it just looked really poor.
- On the other hand, he was money in the mid-range off the bounce, really elevating and getting his elbow up and squared (essentially shooting a far different shot, mechanically). At this level, he can bump and fade his way into as many Js as he wanted here, and it looked deadly.
- Pretty relentless glass-crasher. Creates plenty of extra looks for his team game in and game out.
- Guards every position at this level, can be suffocating with his tools, strength, and athleticism.
- Capable of blowing up plays defensively, more disruptive than the numbers showed here.

Bottom Line: Physically overwhelms 99.9% of opponents at the HS level, and at that size, the elite trait is the versatility with the ability to guard, slash, finish, make decisions, hit jumpers, and so on. Just does it all with all the tools he needs to succeed, and even if he doesn't end up a one and done or high usage creating piece, he still projects to be an extremely versatile complementary piece as a pro, as it stands.

Questions:

- How much of his physical dominance will translate to the next level, much less the highest level?
- Will he ever be able to truly stretch it? And how much will it matter?
- Can he extend the mid-range mechanics to the 3pt line? What's holding that back?

HM to HM+

[REDACTED]

Roles: Defender, Versatility, Finisher, Rebounder, High Motor, Toughness, Scorer, Glue Guy
Projection Range: HM to HM+ (confidence level: 100%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Sandra Day O'Connor (AZ): 27mp, 22p (8-14 FG, 0-3 3FG, 6-8 FT), 14r (6oreb), 0a, 1to
vs. Layton Christian (UT): 23mp, 14p (4-10 FG, 3-7 3FG, 3-4 FT), 10r (5oreb), 3a, 3to
vs. Coronado (NV): 30mp, 13p (6-21 FG, 1-4 3FG, 0-1 FT), 8r (5oreb), 3a, 1to, 1s

- Ultra-lanky. Very long, fluid, mobile. Still filling out. Still growing into his athleticism, but glides on the court, at times. Moves the part of a potential HM+ guy.
- Tremendous motor, always active. Plays with a chip on his shoulder.
- Changes ends really well. Gets off the ground quick. Lob catcher in the halfcourt
- Pretty excellent flashes of touch as a finisher, has some creativity too. Capitalizes on whatever window was presented.
- Nice flashes of straight-line driving and finishing vs. contests
- Solid foundation and repeatability on the jump shot, but mostly a standstill C&S guy at this point. Could tap into more volume, but was great in the corners. Ceiling of this skill is pretty integral to his long term outlook.
- Has some legit live dribble passing chops in the teeth of the D too
- Really made his presence felt on the glass this week. Gobbles up boards, elite high pointer of the ball. Has a nose for the ball, and it's tough to keep him off the glass at this level with his length + ground coverage. Getting stronger will allow this to scale up levels, but this a serious tool of his...
- Versatile, switchable defender. Leverages his length well on this end and competes. Potential to be quite disruptive off the ball.

Bottom Line: Seems to get better by the viewing. On an exciting trajectory (despite playing slightly worse in each successive game, here). A ton to like about his approach. Brings some real fight. IMO, could wind up as the perfect combo forward for the modern game, as he is versatile on D, can stretch it reasonably well (and should improve), rebounds, finishes, hits some quality passes, and plays his tail off. A lot to love about his outlook.

Questions:

- Can he become more consistent as a range shooting threat?
- What kind of strides can he make as a self-creator/with his handle?

Roles: Slasher, Finisher, Scorer, Versatility, Creator, Defender, Rebounder, Facilitator
Projection Range: HM to HM+ (confidence level: 95%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Layton Christian (UT): 28mp, 20p (7-19 FG, 0-7 3FG, 6-10 FT), 8r (2oreb), 3a, 3to, 2b, 3s

vs. Coronado (NV): 23mp, 17p (5-8 FG, 0-0 3FG, 7-8 FT), 10r (2oreb), 9a, 2to, 1s

vs. Sandra Day O'Connor (AZ): 31mp, 34p (14-19 FG, 2-4 3FG, 4-7 FT), 10r (1oreb), 4a, 6to, 1b, 4s

- Big, strong frame at 6'7, and long. Outlier physical and athletic gifts. Dangerous combination of nimble and explosive for how many lbs. he's carrying. Absolute freak.
- On-court personality can be a bit manic/volatile. Can be pretty fired up and communicative one minute in a positive sense, and then can check out for a few possessions, be casual and cool for a stretch, and then lose his temper. Will let refs, teammates, opponents, etc. know what's on his mind. Hard to predict which Tyran you are going to get as the game goes on.
- Advanced feel, but certainly has sub-par discipline and polish.
- Best attribute is still his slashing, as he is an absolute runaway freight train in transition (or when he gets a step in the HC).
- Initiates contact at a high level. Has stretches where he can be a real foul magnet, just not much defenders can do when he has a head of steam. Pretty incredible finishing touch going right, too.
- Could improve his ability to decel and process, obviously hasn't had to do much thus far in his career. Still very TO prone in traffic, often driving without a plan.
- Has become so much more comfortable operating on-ball. Has gotten better at seeing the floor. Handles it pretty well, and is well above average as a passer when his mind is right.
- Capable of simplifying the game and creating easy looks for his teammates, but can also throw some serious head scratchers when he loses focus.
- Great upside as a cutter – can do a ton of damage with intentional off-ball movement

- Shoots a seemingly effortless, soft ball, but doesn't make it at a bankable rate yet. Doesn't get much lift on it. Can see the natural ability, but needs to become much more consistent with it, misses are all over the place and he can put up some serious bricks.
- Capable of really making his presence felt as a rebounder – on both ends.
- Versatile, physical defender that can be the definition of disruptive off the ball. Can legitimately guard every spot at this level and have an advantage to work with.
- Can swallow up shots from the strong or weak side.

Bottom Line: At his best, he's an outlier combination of power, finesse, versatility, and skill — but Tyrant reaching his ceiling feels especially shaky for a guy being touted as no. 1 in the country. Really question his ability to be 'the guy' due to inconsistency, low polish level for a usage guy, and the general volatility, and I further doubt that he would be someone who would commit to being an elite supporting piece. Long term, what he is elite at (being stronger/more athletic than everyone else with some feel) could absolutely plateau him out unless his skill level really dramatically changes. Honestly has some real areas to overcome, but has undeniable outlier tools and talent.

Questions:

- Shooting trajectory? Lift? Consistency?
- Do his teammates like playing with him?
- Can he harness/channel his magnetism and become a high-level leader?

*Dealt with foul trouble vs. Gonzaga in 1H

- Good, not great modern 5 size, height-wise.
- Below-average length at around +2-3”.
- Not very explosive, but he’s light on his feet.
- Soft hands.
- Needs to be able to own his space better. Was getting pushed around by Christian Gurdak with relative ease.
- Another area for improvement – the fluidity in which he changes ends. Can lumber around a bit.
- Great passing feel for a big, sees the floor quite well and can deliver accurate passes.
- Feathery touch in the paint as a finisher.
- Soft touch as a shooter, can stretch the floor.
- Can settle for jumpers a tad too often – room for improvement with his shot selection, but it’s not a glaring issue...projects as a big time stretch big
- Impressive radius as a rebounder. Could stand to be stronger with the ball at times.
- Does not consistently make his presence felt defensively,, but does try to board and stay vertical inside.

Bottom Line: Has a lot of modern traits you look for in a young big that can post, pass, and shoot, which lay the foundation for that HM to HM+ upside. He struggled to produce against stronger, older competition, as he wasn’t able to leverage his tools as much as he was used to. Don’t want to be too hard on a 16 year old big about conditioning/physicality when he is already so skilled, but they will be areas to monitor critically as he develops. Has a chance to be an elite big.

Questions:

- How tough is he?
- Can he get his sh*t together and improve his body?

HM

Roles: High Flyer, Rim Protector, Rebounder, Rim Runner, Finisher
Projection Range: HM (confidence level: 95%)

Stats (1 GP):

vs. Utah Prep (UT): 17mp, 8p (4-8 FG, 0-1 3FG, 0-0 FT), 7r (2oreb), 0a, 1to, 3b

Bottom Line: He's still 95% tools right now...Going away from where he was extremely effective as an athletic end-to-end rim runner and rim protector. Tried to do too much here. Battled foul trouble in this one — far from his best showing. Remains highly opportunistic on offense. Can erase shots with his length and bounce.

Questions:

- Is he developing at Faith Family?
- Head case? Body language can go sideways pretty fast
- Will he ever develop a better feel for the game?

Roles: Defender, Rebounder, High Motor, Slasher, Creator, Toughness
Projection Range: HM (confidence level: 75%)

Stats (1 GP):

vs. SoCal Academy (CA): 27mp, 10p (5-16 FG, 0-3 3FG, 0-0 FT), 2r, 2a, 2to, 1b, 3s

Bottom Line: Undersized (no way he's his listed 6'4") power guard. Can be a blur going N-S. Still learning to be a PG...not natural for him...this is a nurture vs. nature thing, because he isn't the most naturally cerebral player. Farm from his most efficient outing. Least amount of rebounds I've ever seen him record in a game...is almost automatically 5-6+ per game, so this is an aberration. Defensive playmaker. Covers a ton of ground on D.

Questions:

- Can you win big at the HM level if he is your lead guard?
- Can he become as effective in the HC as he is in transition on O?

Roles: Finisher, Creator, Versatility, Connector, Slasher, Mid-Range Game, Scorer
Projection Range: HM (confidence level: 100%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Duncanville (TX): 24mp, 21p (9-15 FG, 0-1 3FG, 3-4 FT), 3r (1oreb), 3a, 3to, 1b

vs. Chaminade (MO): 30mp, 17p (7-21 FG, 0-2 3FG, 3-6 FT), 10r (5oreb), 6a, 2to

vs. Harvard-Westlake (CA): 29mp, 15p (6-10 FG, 0-0 3FG, 3-6 FT), 6r (2oreb), 4a, 4to

- Wing-sized with some guard skills. Big time matchup problem in the HC.
- HM level functional strength and athleticism, especially for being so wiry. Elite length.
- It can look funky, but very mobile. Unique mover... Consistently finds ways to get to his spots with comfort.
- Really high activity level on O, always in attack mode.
- Comfortable operating on ball, essentially their lead BH at De La Salle. Gets impressively low as a handler as he attacks the paint.
- More of a straight line driver, but has counters and different gathers to go to. Very LH dominant w/ soft touch.
- Advanced footwork – kind of uncanny how he can re-find his balance instinctually... Tremendous movement skills.
- Good court vision and cadence as a passer. Does a great job identifying cutters. Made some great drop-off reads throughout the event, too. Does a great job kicking ahead in transition off a d-reb. Legitimate playmaker.
- Has some mid-range game and a pretty trusty floater game.
- Has the ability to stretch the floor, but didn't see much of that here. Legit MR-PUJ in his bag, but not his go-to value add.
- His presence is felt much more often on the offensive end vs. defensive end.
- Tools to be a havoc defender off the ball, which perhaps he could be with less of an offensive load. The length and movement lay the foundation for his upside.
- Quality rebounder, gets to the ball in and out of his area here, but more opportunistic than assertive on the glass, defensively. Great at following his own interior misses and putting them back on O.

Bottom Line: More of an unorthodox player, but highly capable of impacting games — especially on offense. I mean, this kid moves the right way, can handle it like a guard, has the size + length and is close to that D-P-S mold... He could be a legit NBA guy if he fully pursued it... Stud.

Questions:

- Range shooting volume + consistency?
- What does he give you off the ball?
- How will his dual-baseball commitment hold his upside back?

Roles: Scorer, Finisher, Mid-Range Game, Rebounder

Projection Range: HM (confidence level: 90%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Coronado (NV): 31mp, 19p (7-22 FG, 3-11 3FG, 2-2 FT), 8r (2oreb), 2a, 2to, 1b, 4s

vs. Sandra Day O'Connor (AZ): 28mp, 24p (7-16 FG, 2-8 3FG, 8-8 FT), 10r, 3a, 3to, 1s

vs. Layton Christian (UT): 30mp, 11p (4-16 FG, 0-9 3FG, 3-5 FT), 9r, 4a, 3to, 1s

- Pretty functionally strong frame at 6'4. Not all that long, but has a positive wingspan differential.
- Below-the-rim as an athlete and not all that fluid, but has some shift as a mover. His movement can feel rather rigid at times.
- Physical, looks to own his space through physicality. Wills himself to the line.
- Has a foundation of self-creation ability and hunts his shot pretty constantly, but has definite limits. Can struggle to create separation when trying to get downhill, which can lead to some pretty high degree of difficulty shots. Can initiate body bumps to create space, but didn't generate many easy looks (nor hit his open ones all that consistently).
- Really skilled finisher with either hand – almost seems more effective/comfortable with his L.
- Could become more efficient as a handler, but is still rather tight with the ball and does a great job of playing low.
- Well-balanced jumper with a promising shooting profile. Has appeal as a multi-level shot-maker that can find windows to get his shot off at any point against this level of comp. Really effective as a 15-17 pull-up jump shooter with ideal rotation on his ball... Could stand to speed up his release for the next level, as it takes quite a while to get off.
- Can struggle with efficiency as a scorer. Missed a notable amount of open spot up jumpers, which felt a bit out of character. Opposing defenses were not closing out too hard on him. Needs to make the easy ones.
- Not everything is all that buttoned up with how he operates, always feels like the passes are a little off the mark, the shot is a little slow, etc. May struggle to adjust to the next level in this role, if that maintains.
- Popped as a defensive rebounder here. Nice development if that's something he's going to commit to. Went out of his area on some crashes and high pointed it in traffic.
- Blended in defensively more than he stood out. Athletic tools will limit his long term upside on this end, as he isn't the level of athlete to just blow up plays or guard multiple spots.

Bottom Line: Older, score-first guard that struggled with efficiency in a big way here for the volume he was carrying, and didn't consistently make others better. Approach didn't really change despite the low efficiency, either. Overall, a poorer 3-day showing for what he is capable of, just never seemed to get it going.

Questions:

- Positive impact when he isn't scoring?
- Role scalability?

Roles: Shooter, Connector, Versatility, Glue Guy

vs. Link (MO): 31mp, 15p (6-7 FG, 2-3 3FG, 1-1 FT), 5r (1oreb), 6a, 4to, 2s

- Filling out nicely.
- Well-proportioned frame.
- Coordinated athlete with good mobility/agility.
- Seems to generally be out to make the right play as a decision maker.
- Good connective passer. Does a nice job finding cutters on time and in rhythm.
- Versatile shooting profile. Shoots a well-balanced J, was money from the corners.
- Can do some glue guy stuff with basic connecting passing and boarding.
- Makes his presence felt defensively. Brings a nice blend of size, strength, physicality, and agility on this end. Tries to guard.

Bottom Line: One of the most effective performances (outside of the TOs) that I have seen from him, looked like a clear cut HM complementary piece, here. Played with great efficiency while finding other ways to impact the game.

Questions:

- Can he more consistently tap into the passing he showed here?
- Can he grow his 3pt volume comfortably?

Roles: Shooter, BBIQ, Connector, Defender, Crafty Finisher

Projection Range: HM (confidence level: 90%)

vs. Chaminade (MO): 29mp, 18p (8-13 FG, 2-5 3FG, 0-0 FT), 4r (2oreb), 3a, 1to, 1b, 2s

Bottom Line: Relatively average perimeter size + athleticism for a HM 2, but brings a high skill level + feel to both ends of the court. Bankable shooter with real connective playmaking to his game. Pretty steady and consistent throughout, taking his looks in the flow. Every-day guy that can do a bit on and off-ball, malleable. Should be a strong college player and impact starter, in time.

Questions:

- How much will the athletic tools hinder him?

Roles: Defender, High Motor, Creator, Scorer, Finisher, Versatility, Slasher, Connector, Toughness, Glue Guy

vs. AZ Compass (AZ): 30mp, 17p (5-14 FG, 1-2 3FG, 6-8 FT), 10r (1oreb), 0a, 2to, 2b, 2s

vs. Link (MO): 30mp, 19p (8-14 FG, 1-4 3FG, 2-4 FT), 5r, 7a, 3to, 3s

- Big guard, really great tools. Built for contact, plays with tremendous physicality.
- Needs to improve his ability to decelerate — can get caught going one speed.
- Consistently plays hard and applies pressure to his opponent. Likes to keep his foot on the gas.
- Great rim runner... not something that typically stands out from perimeter-oriented players.
- Has some upside as a secondary creator / playmaker – made some nice reads in traffic within the HC setting, here.
- Has a lot of offensive feel and ability, makes positive reads, and can see one step ahead (in somewhat predictable ways).
- Multi-level threat as a scorer — has some valuable self-creation wiring.
- Gets good lift on his J, both OTC and with his PUJ.
- Advanced finishing package with some different release points and nifty footwork in his bag. Can still miss bunnies, so not perfect here by any means, but has strong highs.
- Chips in on the glass. Loves to grab a d-board and push the pace.
- He really can defend, strong and could check multiple spots/BHs.
- Finds ways to impact the game without scoring, makes his presence felt. Winning stuff.

Bottom Line: Still working his way back from injury. Can tell he's not 100% comfortable out there but still showcased the high level versatility he offers. Still, was a stud against Link. So much versatility and feel, contributes to winning in multiple ways.

Questions:

- Malleable with his role, where does he end up most comfortably, long term?

Roles: BBIQ, Creator, Mid-Range Game, Scorer, Facilitator, Connector, Versatility, Crafty Finisher
Projection Range: HM (confidence level: 100%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Perry (AZ): 28mp, 18p (5-13 FG, 2-7 3FG, 6-7 FT), 9r, 7a, 4to

vs. Gonzaga (DC): 24mp, 16p (5-15 FG, 1-5 3FG, 5-7 FT), 1r, 4a, 3to, 2s

vs. De La Salle (CA): 32mp, 14p (5-16 FG, 2-6 3FG, 2-2 FT), 5r (2oreb), 6a, 4to

- Great height, but really short arms and small hands make him play smaller than he is.
- Pretty average athletically, but always under control.
- Pretty awesome level of skill (passing/shooting) and overall feel
- Competitive, brings a care factor.
- Skilled OTD shooter from multiple levels. Shoots an easy ball, but isn't a pure shooter. The touch is good, but not elite, if we are nitpicking.
- Self-creator from the 4 spot. Manufactured the windows a lot, but still missed the little touch shots/fades more than he should, here. Does a lot of work in the mid-range.
- Love the passing acumen for a guy that size, can legit handle in PnR. Of all his skills, this was the most standout trait that he had to offer.
- Was looser with the ball this week than in many previous viewings, but still is a pretty capable handler for that size.
- Length limits him defensively, but makes the effort to guard and can chip in on the glass. Probably not all that versatile on this end, long term, and a ceiling hindrance.

Bottom Line: Was much less efficient this week than usual. Seemed to be playing with an increased speed/cadence and sense of urgency, too. Is normally playing in almost slow-mo mode. Got sped up a bit, here, which is a rarity for him, historically, but the passing acumen was still a major value-add.

Questions:

- Is he more of a versatile connector/playmaker, long term, than a higher usage scorer?

Roles: Creator, BBIQ, Floor General

Projection Range: HM (confidence level: 80%)

Stats (1 GP):

vs. Faith Family (TX): 26mp, 9p (4-6 FG, 1-3 3FG, 0-0 FT), 7r, 10a, 3to, 1b

Bottom Line: Avg. positional size at the 1. Strong ass frame. It's impressive how much he's filled out since middle school. Looks like a college player from a physical standpoint. High-level use of footwork to create space and make defenders miss. Helps mitigate his lack of athletic pop. Applies rim pressure in transition and in the HC. Unselfish ball-handler who creates scoring opportunities for his team better than 99% of high school players. Still needs to become more consistent as a shooter, but continues to flash multi-level shotmaking upside. Will compete defensively and has the frame to do so at the CBB level, but seems to make his presence felt much more often on offense.

Questions:

- Range shooting consistency?
- FT rate? Can he leverage his strength better and get that volume up?

HM- to HM

Roles: Connector, Defender

Projection Range: HM- to HM (confidence level: 70%)

Stats (1 GP):

vs. Faith Family (TX): 25mp, 4p (2-3 FG, 0-0 3FG, 0-0 FT), 4r (2oreb), 5a, 3to, 2b, 1s

Bottom Line: Elite perimeter size, WS and ATH tools for starters...Filling out nicely. Immediately eye-catching from a physical standpoint. Secondary playmaker on O. Active, lanky defender on the other end. A ton to love about his two-way upside. Quieter showing here and still sneakily stuffed the stat sheet. Could be in for a breakout spring/summer.

Questions:

- Self creation?

Roles: Creator, Scorer

Projection Range: HM- to HM (confidence level: 80%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Wasatch (UT): 27mp, 11p (4-11 FG, 2-3 3FG, 1-1 FT), 2r (1oreb), 2a, 0to, 2b, 1s

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 24mp, 12p (4-11 FG, 1-4 3FG, 3-5 FT), 7r (4oreb), 2a, 0to, 1b, 1s

- Elite perimeter size.
- Pretty basic handle, but takes care of the ball (0 TO in 51 MP, here).
- Needs to continue to improve as an off-ball threat. So used to having the ball in his hands the whole game, but tough to see him filling that role at the next level.
- Likes to operate in the mid-range and get to his spots between 12-17 feet.
- Shoots an easy ball. Seems to be making improvements as a spot-up threat.

Bottom Line: Has really assimilated well with this roster...looking seemingly more comfortable by the week. Looks comfortable in his role as a secondary playmaker who shoulders some scoring load.

Questions:

- Can he get by anyone one-on-one without a ball screen?

Roles: Shooter

Projection Range: HM- to HM (confidence level: 90%)

Stats (1 GP):

vs. Utah Prep (UT): 32mp, 27p (10-20 FG, 5-9 3FG, 2-2 FT), 0r, 3a, 0to, 1s

Bottom Line: Solid perimeter size. Thicc build. Huge ass. Was the only Faith Family guy to show up in the team's prime time matchup with Utah Prep. Can stretch the floor with relative ease. Shooting mechanics aren't the cleanest/most fluid, but has nice touch. Didn't look particularly dynamic with ball in hand when run off the line. Played the entire game and had zero rebounds.

Roles: Rebounder, Low Post Scorer, Finisher

Projection Range: HM- to HM (confidence level: 95%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Sunnyslope (AZ): 22mp, 10p (5-8 FG, 0-0 3FG, 0-0 FT), 11r (7oreb), 0a, 2to, 1b

vs. Harvard-Westlake (CA): 24mp, 10p (4-10 FG, 0-0 3FG, 2-2 FT), 15r (9oreb), 1a, 5to, 2b

vs. Chaminade (MO): 25mp, 7p (3-10 FG, 0-1 3FG, 1-2 FT), 9r (3oreb), 1a, 0to, 4b

- Undersized 5-man, height-wise, but very long (previously measured a 7'2.5 wingspan) which helps him play bigger.
- Naturally strong frame. If you're going to move him off his spot it's going to take a Herculean effort. Really excellent at holding his ground in the post. Darius Wabington (5-star 2027) was having a heck of a time trying to get to his spots.
- Does his job, but not a guy that exudes passion or toughness.
- Has some polish as a post scorer, sharp footwork and methodical. Going to be a translatable tool and value-driver.
- Gobbles up boards. Had double-digit rebounds by halftime vs. Sunnyslope and H-W. Positions himself really well on the interior. Was incredibly productive and engaged here.

Bottom Line: Fundamentally sound big with sneaky solid physical tools, was unstoppable on the glass all weekend and has a translatable post acumen. Higher floor for college with his ability to board, contest, and be a threat to score inside.

Questions:

- Toughness level, in terms of adversity response?
- Can he be a post presence that runs the show, offensively, in time?

Roles: High Motor, Finisher, Crafty Finisher, Slasher, Toughness, Defender
Projection Range: HM- to HM (confidence level: 80%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Wasatch (UT): 24mp, 6p (3-6 FG, 0-1 3FG, 0-3 FT), 3r, 5a, 2to, 5s

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 25mp, 6p (3-5 FG, 0-1 3FG, 0-3 FT), 4r (2oreb), 0a, 3to, 3s

- Avg. backcourt size.
- Plus-athlete, overall.
- Plus-motor. Has always been one of his calling cards. Plays with some real competitive fire.
- Has some crafty finishes in his bag. Attacks the rack hard. Super comfortable going up and converting with either hand.
- Short memory. Doesn't tend to let misses or bad stretches affect how he approaches the next play, quarter, game, etc.
- Brings good effort on the defensive end. Complete bulldog on D when he's locked in. Plays with active hands and feet.

Bottom Line: Didn't have his strongest showing on O, but brought energy and disruption defensively. Can impact games on both ends. Comes across as invested in winning and as a big time competitor. May be a tad overrated, but still one of the better backcourt prospects in the class

Questions:

- Can he become more consistent as a shooter? The talent is there
- How long will it take for his body to fill out?

Roles: Defender, Slasher, Glue Guy, Connector

Projection Range: HM- to HM (confidence level: 80%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Wasatch (UT): 31mp, 22p (8-12 FG, 4-6 3FG, 2-2 FT), 4r (1oreb), 3a, 0to, 6s

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 30mp, 3p (1-9 FG, 1-6 3FG, 0-0 FT), 6r (1oreb), 3a, 1to, 1s

Bottom Line: Avg. positional size as a 1. Underwhelming size if he's playing off-ball. Decent frame. Low-mistake player. Just OK as a handler. Lacks wiggle. Effective ball-mover in the HC. Up and down as a shooter, but seemingly making strides. Is an automatic deflection on D. His bread is buttered in a big way on this end.

Questions:

- Can he be a full-time 1?

Roles: Toughness, Scorer, Crafty Finisher, Shooter, Facilitator

Projection Range: HM- to HM (confidence level: 85%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Sunnyslope (AZ): 30mp, 14p (6-10 FG, 2-4 3FG, 0-0 FT), 4r, 4a, 2to, 1b, 2s vs. Harvard-Westlake (CA): 26mp, 14p (4-11 FG, 1-3 3FG, 5-6 FT), 7r (2oreb), 5a, 2to, 1s

vs. Chaminade (MO): 28mp, 21p (8-12 FG, 1-2 3FG, 4-5 FT), 6r (2oreb), 3a, 3to, 1b, 2s

Bottom Line: Foot was not as on the gas as much as usual, but has a clear value prop of toughness, self creation, and high level feel that will make him a winner at the college level. Undersized, sure, but can really guard + get his own going to the hoop and hit the 3pt shot OTDI. Gonzaga has had a crazy schedule, which I am sure has impacted his consistency, but when he turns it on he is a clear cut HM guard. Still like him quite a bit.

Questions:

- Just fatigued? Not as competitive as usual.

Roles: Defender, BBIQ, Rebounder, Finisher, Connector, Versatility, Shooter, Glue Guy, Rim Protector

vs. Roosevelt (CA): 29mp, 10p (2-5 FG, 1-3 3FG, 5-5 FT), 13r (3oreb), 2a, 2to, 1s

vs. Notre Dame (CA): 30mp, 26p (10-15 FG, 4-7 3FG, 2-3 FT), 8r (4oreb), 4a, 5to, 5b, 1s

- Lefty combo forward, 6'7"- 6'8" range with plus length.
- Strong frame, broad shoulders. In excellent shape.
- Can look a little stiff as a mover, at times, but is mobile enough to cover ground in transition and guard multiple positions.
- Versatile, positionally. Can do a little bit of everything.
- Does a nice job playing off two, doesn't get out of control.
- Has a really easy stroke, stretches the floor nicely for a 4. Wish he shot it more, frankly, like he did in the Notre Dame game where he made a concerted effort to be more aggressive.
- Makes a concerted effort to survey the floor and find open teammates in the HC. Functions just fine as a ball mover and connector. Can be too unselfish at times, looking to defer before pressing advantages at times.
- Leaves something to be desired as a self-creator, doesn't have much of a 'bag' to go into. More methodical and conservative.
- Can punish smaller opponents in the post
- Big time rebounder for his size, impacts the glass on both ends.
- Can blow plays up, defensively. Very alert and engaged on this end

Bottom Line: Cerebral, versatile 4-man with HM athleticism/tools that projects as a potentially elite complementary piece due to his ability to guard, rebound, shoot, finish, and pass. Here, he was very passive and trying to make the right play rather than assert himself on days 1 and 2, but turned it on for the final match against Tyran Stokes (and almost willed them to a W). Could benefit from thinking less and just playing. Has a chance to be a pro if he wants it badly enough.

Questions:

- R hand finishing?
- Can he get by anyone 1 on 1?
- Can he buy into being more aggressive and assertive every night, and fully realize how much that impacts winning basketball?
- Can he develop into more than a 3 dribble (or so) guy?

MM+ to HM

[REDACTED]

Roles: High Flyer, Defender, Connector, Finisher, Rim Runner, Glue Guy, Facilitator, Slasher
Projection Range: MM+ to HM (confidence level: 95%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Notre Dame (CA): 32mp, 14p (7-10 FG, 0-0 3FG, 0-0 FT), 10r (2oreb), 4a, 4to, 3b

vs. St. John Bosco (CA): 29mp, 15p (6-8 FG, 0-0 3FG, 3-4 FT), 4r (1oreb), 0a, 1to, 1b, 1s

vs. Roosevelt (CA): 30mp, 5p (2-8 FG, 0-2 3FG, 1-6 FT), 7r, 4a, 4to, 2b, 1s

- Sure looks the part. Legitimate wing size, but is still pretty rail thin. Lots of filling out to do. Gangly, definition of rangy.
- Freaky vertical athlete, above the rim type off either 1 or 2. Fluid, twitchy mover, all-around. Pretty awesome in the open court, just a guy you need to get out of the way of unless you have elite tools or athleticism. REALLY quick second jump, tons of twitch to him to the degree that his vertical play looks effortless.
- Threat to detonate at the rim off 1 or 2 feet. Powerful dunker, but has decent touch below the rim.
- Lacks functional strength in a major way, gets pushed off his line on both ends (which seems to be the largest hindrance for him to overcome, in his current archetype).
- Provided some nice flashes of secondary/tertiary playmaking for teammates. Has some sneaky passing ability and is wired to pass first. Dribbles with his eyes up, sees over the defense and can really swing the ball around.
- Can't really screen anyone with how skinny he is.
- Attacks the rack with impressive toughness, considering his weak frame. Not really scared of contact.
- Non-shooter as it stands. Warmup Js look super manufactured and uncomfortable at times. Shaky FT shooter.
- Uses his length well in passing lanes. Potential to be very disruptive off the ball.
- Can die after taking a hit on D. Hard for him to be a multiple effort guy with his lack of strength. Really upright here, hurts his ability to own space as he just wants to out-length and out-jump guys

- Has some shot blocking ability with the quick twitch leaping and length, even on the perimeter.

Bottom Line: Highly unique archetype as pass-first twitchy, long, 6'7" athlete that is also a freakish vertical threat. Will look a lot better with spacing to operate in as an athletic connector that can spray the ball around, and his current squad has only 1-2 guys that can stretch it on the court with him...Needs more halfcourt substance and he hasn't made many game-changing strides on the court, but the upside is pretty intriguing as a potential elite complementary piece.

Questions:

- Can he tighten up his handle? What kind of realistic strides can he make in this dept.?
- Shooting touch? Consistency from range? Was 0-2 from 3 in 91 MP, here...
- Ability to add weight? Needs to own space better at the next level, already getting pushed around.

Roles: Floor General, Crafty Finisher, Creator, BBIQ, Toughness, Scorer, Facilitator
Projection Range: MM+ to HM (confidence level: 85%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Link (MO): 14mp, 15p (6-12 FG, 1-4 3FG, 2-2 FT), 2r (1oreb), 5a, 5to, 2s

vs. AZ Compass (AZ): 26mp, 9p (4-8 FG, 1-3 3FG, 0-0 FT), 5r, 6a, 6to

- The size and length are uninspiring, not exactly a player that passes the eye candy test at 5'10 and change, or so.
- Completely below the rim as an athlete, but has some shift in short bursts that allows him to create space and put constant pressure on the rim. Lightning quick first step.
- Mature court presence, leader and guys seem to really like playing with him.
- Very shifty and elusive handle. Got into the paint at will, here. Pretty amazing ability to not get sped up and knife through legit HM+ length and pressure. Saying that he has the ball on a string would be an understatement.
- Highly crafty finisher with excellent touch inside. Has a real knack for generating buckets in the paint. Will go up with either hand at the rim.
- Pretty tremendous overall feel level. Deceptive and usually a step ahead of the defense.
- Poses a threat both as a scorer and playmaker. Excellent creator, overall. Can really bend a defense
- Skilled live-dribble passer with either hand. Excellent lob passer. Had 3-4 perfect deliveries vs. Link.
- Viable shooter, but was looking to create breakdowns more than hunt his shot.
- Needs to keep his TOs in check. 11:11 isn't going to cut it.

- Can sit and slide, defensively...sneaky-strong with quick hands, too...just small, so has some limitations on this end. Quite a pest though, can nab a steal anytime it's in his vicinity.

Bottom Line: Makes a ton of good things happen on offense, and even though it wasn't his best showing, he still shows a ton of winning characteristics in a small guard with his ability to get everyone involved, knife into the lane for paint touches seemingly at will, shoot it, and be a pest defensively. Going to be a major winner at the college level.

Questions:

- Keeping TOs in check?
- Ability to play off the ball outside of basic spot-ups?

vs. Perry (AZ): 27mp, 0p (0-5 FG, 0-3 3FG, 0-0 FT), 2r, 5a, 2to

- Has grown to about all of 6'3" or so in shoes, appears to be still going. Young frame.
- Not a dynamic athlete, but really efficient as a mover. Doesn't waste much movement. Likely a later bloomer like his older brother (Anthony Black).
- Has confidence to him. Some leadership qualities, uses his voice a bit, but could stand to do more (will come with maturity).
- Patient decision maker who plays with elite pace control. Has been quite turnover prone though, but has the foundation of a floor general with his ability to make reads, find the paint, probe, manipulate help, and hit passing windows.
- Precise passer. Creative and timely with his deliveries
- Can struggle to finish amongst the trees, but has some sh*t up his sleeve as a crafty finisher – with either hand, too
- Needs to prove himself as a range shooting threat. Kind of an afterthought for him at this stage. Put up too many Js for my taste. Touch isn't great anywhere honestly.
- Not a MAJOR standout defensively, still not athletically as developed as others, and can struggle to contain older guards in isolation. Didn't always feel his presence here.

Bottom Line: Beckham Black continued to flash what makes him an intriguing long term prospect in the '27 group with his unique pace control, PnR/drive-and-dish creation, and crafty slashing. Doesn't need to score the ball to be effective, and could be a physical/athletic late bloomer like his older brother... Lot to like in his upside.

Questions:

- Shooting development?
- Will he make it to 6'5+?

Roles: High Motor, Finisher, Rim Runner, Defender

Projection Range: MM to HM (confidence level: 70%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 30mp, 11p (5-7 FG, 0-1 3FG, 1-3 FT), 6r (1oreb), 2a, 4to, 2b, 3s

vs. Wasatch (UT): 24mp, 5p (2-6 FG, 0-2 3FG, 1-2 FT), 3r (3oreb), 1a, 2to, 2s

Bottom Line: Undersized big, 6'8" or so. Previously measured a 7'0" wingspan. Thicker frame. Still has some baby fat. Plus-length. Big hands. Really competes, attacks the glass, sprints the floor. Effort giver. Pretty emotional player. Capable of impacting the momentum of games with his effort level. Tries to do a bit too much with the ball in his hands, at times. Wants to score the rock. Works on D, active. Moves his feet surprisingly well.

Roles: Scorer, Slasher, Finisher

Projection Range: MM to HM (confidence level: 75%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 22mp, 8p (3-10 FG, 0-3 3FG, 2-2 FT), 4r (2oreb), 4a, 4to, 1s

vs. Wasatch (UT): 31mp, 27p (7-14 FG, 0-3 3FG, 13-17 FT), 6r (2oreb), 5a, 7to, 4s

- Tremendous frame for a guard, has really put on muscle and can be a bully-ball type of ball handler.
- Showed some open court burst / speed with the ball
- Hungry to get downhill in the HC and also really puts pressure on the rim in transition, his best skill by a mile. Can play through contact at a HM level, and can go up with either hand to finish at the rim. Almost solely below-the-rim as a finisher, still. His main value driver, as it stands.
- Has made noticeable strides as a facilitator over the past year, or so, but the decision making still leaves a bit to be desired. Highly turnover prone from driving without a plan and doesn't see the floor well (tons of tunnel vision).
- Tough to fully buy into his shot. Makes enough to warrant putting a hand up, but streaky and inconsistent. 0 for the weekend from 3 (0-6)

- Strong potential defensively with the tools at his disposal, but inconsistent in impact and approach on this end. When he really locks in, he can look quite good here.

Bottom Line: No questioning his ability to fill up the box score when he has a higher usage, but the question of does it impact winning continues to come up with Jerry. Still rather low on him as a guy that can drive winning with the current skill set and history... The bully-ball style, lack of skill development, and approach to the game leaves me concerned too.

Questions:

- Is he going to win, anywhere?
- Too me-first?

Roles: Creator, Defender, Scorer, Crafty Finisher, Slasher
Projection Range: MM to HM (confidence level: 80%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. AZ Compass (AZ): 31mp, 6p (0-4 FG, 0-0 3FG, 6-9 FT), 3r, 4a, 6to, 1s

vs. Link (MO): 30mp, 14p (5-6 FG, 2-2 3FG, 2-2 FT), 1r, 5a, 4to, 1b, 1s

- Solid backcourt size at 6'3 or so with plus length. Looks the part of a potential HM combo guard.
- Volatile in approach, can look completely gassed or disengaged and then turn it around completely... Never sure which Katreille you are going to get on a day to day basis.
- Fluid and dynamic athlete with so much natural ability. Explosive and agile. Thrives in space + transition.
- Skilled, but not the most disciplined player. Out of control for the most part, driving into traffic w/o a plan.
- Plus slasher with crafty finishing acumen, able to find the paint with relative ease.
- Has some live-dribble passing acumen, but doesn't prize the ball. Can have stretches where he really sprays it all over the place as a lackadaisical passer, highly TO prone.
- Shoots an easy ball, but could stand to be more assertive from deep.
- Moves well laterally. Has a natural ability to sit and slide on the perimeter with both guard spots. When engaged, has the ability to be really disruptive with the length, as well.

Bottom Line: Had one of the worst performances I have seen of his on day 1, just looked tired, and behind, but turned it around day 2 in a highly positive showing where he was efficient with his touches and played both ends. Overall, a very naturally skilled two-way player with clear physical tools to match. Can be loosey-goosey and not always the most serious as a decision-maker, so has some cleaning up to do... but the upside is there.

Questions:

- Can he put it all together? If he does, what does that look like?
- Consistency? Can he be a guy that helps you win every day?
- Game preparation? Does he just show up and hoop?
- Ability to handle a heavy mental load?

vs. Christ the King (NY): 29mp, 16p (6-11 FG, 4-7 3FG, 0-0 FT), 11r (1oreb), 1a, 0to, 2s

vs. Perry (AZ): 25mp, 14p (4-7 FG, 3-6 3FG, 3-4 FT), 7r, 1a, 2to

- Lefty combo guard that is underwhelming physically (6'1" might be a stretch). Small and wiry, has a lot of room to grow still and not all that developed athletically.
- Almost immediately impressed with his assertiveness and confidence as a sophomore.
- Love the shooting acumen, really can string together makes off the catch. Deep range and shoots that thing with confidence.
- Want to see the playmaking improve, didn't always make the smart reads rather than the first one... more reactive than proactive.
- Attacks the basket with fearlessness and a degree of crafty and physicality that will certainly shine brighter when he matures into his body. Goes right at guys' chests and flashed the touch to finish around/through contact at times.
- Innate ability as a rebounder. Impressively makes his presence felt on the glass as one of the smaller players on the court at all times. Has some fight and willpower here, rarely do you see a young skinny ~6'1 guard get double digit boards against older comp (and they weren't uncontested, at that). Nose for the ball.
- Provides awesome effort on D. Made a consistent attempt to sit down and pressure the ball vs. De La Salle, showing that he was unafraid to match up with players several inches taller and quite a few pounds heavier. Held his own admirably.

Bottom Line: One of the clear biggest winners of the week across all three games, here. We like the foundation quite a bit! Has some moxie, tries to guard, and can shoot it.... Not afraid of the moment. Ceiling and long term outlook will be rather dependent on physical development, as he is skinny as they come in a 6'0" guard... Still, brings a ton of winning qualities.

Questions:

- Still looks young in the face and has plenty of room to develop athletically, but dad isn't very big. How much will he grow?

Roles: Stretch Big

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 25mp, 10r (5-15 FG, 0-6 3FG, 0-2 FT), 10r (3oreb), 2a, 0to, 1b

- Legitimate size at 6'10, very narrowly built with little muscle. Hands look tiny compared to what you'd expect from a 6'10 hooper
- Actually rather stiff, and can't take physicality at all. Long limbed and mobile, but definitely more stiff than fluid as it stands. Cannot own his space.
- Immature player. Overinflated ego, shows real insecurity. Talks a whole lot of sh*t. Fake tough guy and a front-runner. Big complainer. Physicality genuinely upsets him, and he complains when he misses shots. Zero adversity response or coping skills. Loose cannon personality...not a guy you can trust in your foxhole. Some of the worst body language you'll see. Everything screams "soft".
- Doesn't make others better on O.
- Some ability to stretch is and finish above the rim, but is inconsistent and soft through any sort of interior contact/traffic. Pretty much an open 3 and open dunk type of player as it stands.
- Underwhelming rebounder, but has stretches where he can make his presence felt. All about effort/desire.
- Has moments as a weakside rim protector.
- Very foul prone on D with lazy habits. Low care factor. Doesn't get back in transition, not being held accountable (and you probably can't hold him accountable, frankly...).

Bottom Line: Talented and toolsy, but his underlying issues are frankly boiling over in a highly visible way. Seems like a college coach's regretful decision waiting to happen, at this rate. When he is locked in he looks like a stud, but that's maybe 5% of the time... Have some serious concerns.

Questions:

- Falling apart?
- Can he survive an entire season at a HM? Has the talent, sure, but unless he is highly catered to, he may just not make it.

Bottom Line: Lefty. Has the frame to withstand some contact. Effective transition player. There may be some nice secondary playmaking potential, here. Looked confident in his shooting stroke, but not over-reliant on it. Plus-defender. Played serious minutes and found ways to impact the game in the gaps, although he was quiet in long stretches. Has some nice two-way upside...2027 name to track closely out of SoCal.

Bottom Line: Was pretty much a zero here and struggled to stay on the court. Got sped up with the ball in his hands when faced with pressure and must improve as a processor. The tools are pretty great for a 16 y/o, and he shoots an impressively easy ball for someone his age + size. Not a good showing at all, but apparent theoretical upside that we have seen more of in previous settings. This showing was not it, though.

vs. AZ Compass (AZ): 18mp, 6p (3-4 FG), 6r (3oreb), 0a, 0to 1b, 1s

- Undersized big if he doesn't grow, which isn't unlikely with how athletically developed he already is. High waisted, long strides – can really fly up and down the floor.
- Impressive athlete. Highlight reel waiting to happen.
- Looks to tear the rim down as a finisher. Had one of the highlights of the weekend with a poster dunk on Chris Cenac.
- Competing and had energy to bring offensively. Has toughness, not a guy that will back down from big matchups or confrontation.
- Lacks much semblance of skill. Pretty strictly opportunistic on offense based on what he showed here. Nothing bankable in terms of dribble-pass-shoot acumen. FTs are quite poor.
- Productive on the offensive glass. Explosive from a standstill, can gather o-rebs and finish some thunderous putbacks with little effort.
- Didn't do much as a rim protector that really stood out, which was worth noting for a guy with his natural gifts.
- Switchable in theory with his current mobility and recovery potential.
- The high-waisted build may make it harder to own space against bigger, physical slashers/post presences defensively.

Bottom Line: Early blooming ultra-athletic big that shines as a finisher and rim runner, but may not have as much upside due to the lack of skill, projected size, and overall archetype as it stands. Still, he has clear appeal with the tools, finishing highs, and motor.

Questions:

- Can he develop a genuine skill set?
- Will he plateau as competition catches up?
- Feel development?

Roles: High Motor, Defender, Finisher, Slasher

Projection Range: MM to HM (confidence level: 55%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 23mp, 7p (3-5 FG, 1-1 3FG, 0-2 FT), 7r (3oreb), 1a, 1to, 1s

vs. Wasatch (UT): 6mp, 0p (0-0 FG, 0-0 FT), 1r, 0a, 0to

*Injured early in the second game

Bottom Line: Intriguing perimeter frame, tremendous length. Loves to get out in transition. Seems to prefer more of a frantic pace. Plays hard and gives solid effort, but questionable skill level. Looked out of control as a driver. Showed some ability to knock down a spot up 3, but has a slower release that may be difficult to scale to volume. Need to see more here, overall. Can get a little handsy on D, but brings intensity and activity to the defensive end. More of a versatile role player than a creator.

Questions:

- More style than substance?
- What skill(s) can he hang his hat on?

Roles: Versatility, Slasher, Finisher, Glue Guy, Rebounder, Toughness

Projection Range: MM to HM (confidence level: 70%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Link (MO): 24mp, 3p (1-4 FG, 0-0 3FG, 1-5 FT), 6r (3oreb), 1a, 3to, 2s

vs. AZ Compass (AZ): 26mp, 8p (3-5 FG, 0-0 3FG, 2-5 FT), 8r (3oreb), 0a, 2to, 1b

- Fits nicely into the versatile 4 mold for this team
- Country-strong type of build. Not someone you want to mess with
- Foul magnet. Really attracts contact
- Sneaky effective handle for his size/position

- Better, softer shooting touch than his 3-10 might indicate. There's a realistic world where he becomes a floor-stretcher down the line
- Can clean up his area on the glass – really made his presence felt on the o-glass, here, especially
- Had some moments where he utilized his strength and length well on the defensive end. Would love to see him lean into this end of the floor more

Bottom Line: Can impact games in a variety of ways. Just brings his lunch pail. Can fit as a complementary piece surrounded by higher level talent. Underrated

Questions:

- Has he plateaued a bit?

Roles: Slasher, High Motor, Toughness, Finisher

Projection Range: MM to HM (confidence level: 65%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Layton Christian (UT): 31mp, 15p (6-12 FG, 0-3 3FG, 3-4 FT), 7r (3oreb), 1a, 3to, 2s

vs. Coronado (NV): 20mp, 22p (10-13 FG, 0-2 3FG, 2-2 FT), 2r (1oreb), 2a, 2to, 1b, 1s

vs. Sandra Day O'Connor (AZ): 28mp, 13p (6-13 FG, 0-2 3FG, 1-3 FT), 0r, 6a, 0to, 3s

Bottom Line: Solid perimeter size. Functionally strong. Guys bounce off him. Holds his own athletically – especially in space. Seems to enjoy taking on a challenge and competing based on his court demeanor, here. Plays hard and with a sense of urgency. Looking to get downhill. Will go up with either hand at the cup. Gets good rotation on his J, though it can get a little flat – closer to a non-shooter than a threat at this stage. Sound laterally – can sit, slide, and mirror as a perimeter defender

Questions:

- Range shooting? Much more comfortable attacking the rim

Roles: Glue Guy, 3&D, Defender, Toughness, High Motor, Shooter

Projection Range: MM to HM (confidence level: 80%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Coronado (NV): 26mp, 14p (6-13 FG, 1-6 3FG, 1-1 FT), 4r (3oreb), 5a, 2to, 1b, 2s

vs. Sandra Day O'Connor (AZ): 28mp, 21p (8-13 FG, 4-8 3FG, 1-1 FT), 6r (2oreb), 4a, 1to, 3s

vs. Layton Christian (UT): 30mp, 10p (4-13 FG, 2-8 3FG, 0-0 FT), 4r (1oreb), 1a, 2to, 3s

- Shorter combo guard/2 with a projectable frame.

- Good body control as a mover, but not a standout in any one area athletically. Plays with a lot of physicality though, which caters to a lot of what he does well (even letting him play bigger than his size, despite not being an elite athlete).
- Below-the-rim as a vertical athlete. Nothing impressive here.
- Needs to do a better job of finishing below the rim in transition.
- Plus-motor. Rarely takes plays off. Makes a lot of good things happen because he plays hard. Still has a calm and collected court demeanor, doesn't let himself get carried away and gives a consistent approach... Impressive wiring.
- Plays with toughness and grit. Winning approach. Dog mentality.
- Shoots a really nice ball. Pro-level stroke with repeatable mechanics, and gets his shot off quickly off the catch. NBA range. Potential to carry volume at the next level.
- Straight-line driver. Somewhat limited with ball in hand, but on the plus-side, he isn't out there trying to be what he's not.
- Moves the ball, not a black hole. Not creating for others necessarily but hitting the open man.
- Found ways to chip in on the glass despite lack of size.
- Great POA defender. Can REALLY guard... Active in pressuring the ball at the POA with quick hands. Physical.
- Plus team defender as well, active and alert off the ball. Communicates well on D, too.

Bottom Line: Brings endearing wiring and an approach/skill set that helps drive winning. Net-positive on both ends. Shorter and not the most eye popping athlete, but certainly not one to overthink, good basketball player and a winner that could see a lot of success at the college level.

Questions:

- What kind of strides can he make as a self-creator, if any?
- Finishing acumen?

MM to HM-

Roles: Rebounder, Rim Protector

Projection Range: MM to HM- (confidence level: 60%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. AZ Compass (AZ): 14mp, 5p (2-4 FG, 0-2 3FG, 1-2 FT), 5r (2oreb), 1a, 1to, 5b

Bottom Line: Decent 5-man size with length. Still filling out. Moves with relative fluidity for his height. Gets off the ground with ease. Showed some touch at the FT line. Makes an impact as a rim protector. Does a nice job affecting shots with his length. Didn't show a ton of depth, here, but has some upside as a serviceable CBB big

Questions:

- Realistic room for growth as a range shooter?
- Is there more to his game than he showed here?

Roles: Creator, Shooter

Projection Range: MM to HM- (confidence level: 75%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. De La Salle (CA): 32mp, 17p (3-10 FG, 1-6 3FG, 10-10 FT), 3r (1oreb), 2a, 3to

vs. Christ the King (NY): 31mp, 27p (8-18 FG, 2-4 3FG, 9-9 FT), 5r (3oreb), 2a, 3to, 1b

vs. Perry (AZ): 26mp, 29p (12-26 FG, 3-7 3FG, 2-3 FT), 3r (2oreb), 3a, 1to

- Avg. perimeter size
- Mildly quick but lacks elite athletic tools
- Has some moments as an intentional off-ball mover / relocater / cutter
- Generates his own offense
- Movement shooting ability from NBA range
- Doesn't hunt 3s at quite the same rate as in the past, but still far from an efficient player
- Picks his spots on when to engage, defensively

Bottom Line: His style / value prop certainly isn't for everyone. Very much still a volume guy for this Duncanville team. His game lacks depth.

Questions:

- How will/would he look in a role with less usage?
- R hand finishing?

Roles: Shooter, High Motor, Defender, Toughness, Scorer

Projection Range: MM to HM- (confidence level: 55%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Link (MO): 16mp, 14p (5-7 FG, 4-5 3FG, 0-2 FT), 0r, 0a, 1to, 2s

vs. AZ Compass (AZ): 11mp, 2p (1-7 FG, 0-3 3FG, 0-0 FT), 2r (1oreb), 1a, 0to, 1b

- Somewhat undersized combo guard, but does a great job of playing low.
- Has a motor and some toughness to him. Competes, makes his presence felt in the minutes he plays.
- Quick, has a lot of shiftiness to his game. Moves the part of a guard that could play at a MM and up level... Didn't see much vertical play from him.

- Can really stroke it. Smooth, repeatable mechanics, whether off the catch or OTD. Interesting flashes of self-creation from deep too, just cooked off the bounce day 1 hitting 4 in the 1H.
- Some ability to knife into the lane, but wasn't his main value-driver here.
- Wasn't much of a creator for others, an area to monitor with him at his size.
- REALLY tries to guard, and pressures the ball at a high level. Plays with active hands. Helps him keep his fingerprints on the game when he isn't scoring.
- Has a level of toughness defensively, really seems bought in to impacting the game on this end.

Bottom Line: Really nice complementary piece, and it really showed against Link. Running the 6th man for Bella Vista and has a lot of bankable value points... Shoots his ass off, plays hard, rarely makes mistakes, and provides great effort on D. Name to follow very closely that could be on the upswing.

Questions:

- Ability to make others better?
- Streaky?

Roles: Defender, Glue Guy

Projection Range: MM to HM- (confidence level: 65%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 22mp, 5p (2-9 FG, 1-3 3FG 0-0 FT), 1r, 2a, 1to, 1b, 2s

vs. Wasatch (UT): 32mp, 2p (1-5 FG, 0-1 3FG, 0-0 FT), 2r, 2a, 1to

- Avg. positional size at best, nothing special here. Lacks + length in a big way, definitely below average here.
- Can get swallowed up by length, didn't have the level of craft to compensate.
- Had some nice moments on defense as an anticipator. Was able to turn D into easy scoring opportunities vs. Bella Vista. Competes defensively, too.
- Shoots a high ball but the touch appears to be fine.
- Was essentially invisible vs. Wasatch (in 32 MP!). Didn't make many mistakes, but sure didn't make much happen either.
- Don't really love the creation, didn't get rim pressure or find his jumper consistently.

Bottom Line: Still hasn't turned 17 yet, but was still very underwhelming here, overall. Struggled to get anything going on the offensive end, but his defense was clearly a winning piece of the puzzle. Without any sort of offensive impact, it's hard to walk away from this one higher on him. Has winning role player traits, but needs to do more on the court for a guard that size.

Questions:

- Offensive consistency?
- Best scoring skill?
- Can he put enough pressure on the rim?

Roles: BBIQ, Versatility, Slasher, Creator

Projection Range: MM to HM- (confidence level: 40%)

Stats (1 GP):

vs. Faith Family (TX): 24mp, 3p (1-2 FG, 0-1 3FG, 1-2 FT), 4r, 0a, 2to, 1b

Bottom Line: Better and more impactful than what tonight's stat line showed. Brings some size, physicality and versatility to the perimeter. Owns his space, but didn't differentiate himself as an athlete out there. Plays with some noticeable flair and creativity as a secondary/tertiary playmaker for this team.

Roles: BBIQ, Defender, Scorer, Facilitator

Projection Range: MM to HM- (confidence level: 45%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Gonzaga (DC): 30mp, 11p (4-14 FG, 0-7 3FG, 3-3 FT), 3r (1oreb), 0a, 3to, 1b, 2s

vs. Perry (AZ): 28mp, 8p (2-9 FG, 1-3 3FG, 3-3 FT), 2r, 3a, 2to

vs. Christ the King (NY): 28mp, 3p (1-8 FG, 1-3 3FG, 0-0 FT), 7r, 3a, 3to, 1b, 2s

- Very nice perimeter size for a ball handler at 6'4 or so.
- Lankier frame that's still filling out. Has some wiry strength. Could be a later bloomer, even though he is 2006-born.
- High activity and engagement level.
- High-feel player – often outsmarts his opponent.
- Does a nice job of keeping things pretty simple on O.
- Effective as a secondary ball handler and playmaker.
- Made some creative passing reads in the HC.
- Gets to his mid-range PUJ a ton.
- Struggled to finish around the basket here.
- Can be super streaky as a range shooter. Shot tends to miss flat.
- Capable of making sh*t happen on defense with his length and activity. Added strength would greatly aid him on this end.

Bottom Line: Struggled to make shots this week in a big way, but still offers some long term two-way playmaking upside. Needs to have a big spring and summer for him as he needs to prove that summer 2024 wasn't a fluke.

Questions:

- Can he adapt when the shot isn't falling?
- Shooting consistency?
- Interior scoring?

vs. Faith Family (TX): 24mp, 15p (5-9 FG, 2-4 3FG, 3-4 FT), 7r (2oreb), 0a, 1to, 1b

Bottom Line: Slots in well at the stretch-4 spot. Passable physical tools, though he's not the biggest or most athletic. Brings a semblance of physicality and toughness to help mitigate his lack of ideal athleticism in the frontcourt. Finds ways to hold his own out there. Got hot in this one from deep. Can really stretch it. This is his primary value prop on O. Makes his presence felt on the glass in just about any setting.

vs. De La Salle (CA): 28mp, 9p (3-9 FG, 2-6 3FG, 1-1 FT), 3r (1oreb), 5a, 3to, 1s

- Nothing special as an athlete, nor the most imposing physically, but doesn't waste much movement. Efficient and polished, plus matured a lot physically.
- Plays with a confidence and self-efficacy that is needed for a higher usage guard.
- Great pace to his game.
- Known as a scorer, but he's an underrated passer/facilitator.

- Tough shotmaker, big time shooting profile, but was inefficient here on his 1st and 3rd day. Curious how streaky he is, over a long term sample.
- Doesn't get to the line, much... 3 FTA in 87 MP, this week.
- Has some grit to him, competed defensively and made his presence felt more than I had seen it previously. Has some dog in him.

Bottom Line: He has been a bucket, but what I have been most impressed with is the toughness and pace that he plays with. Has a chance to be a really solid MM guard that has a pathway to transfer up, long term.

Questions:

- Struggled to string together two good games in a row, here. Is that the norm with him?

MM to MM+

Roles: Connector

Projection Range: MM to MM+ (confidence level: 75%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Sandra Day O'Connor (AZ): 24mp, 8p (3-10 FG, 0-2 3FG, 2-3 FT), 4r (1oreb), 5a, 2to

vs. Layton Christian (UT): 23mp, 6p (2-9 FG, 0-4 3FG, 2-3 FT), 1r, 7a, 3to, 1s

vs. Coronado (NV): 23mp, 29p (11-15 FG, 2-2 3FG, 5-7 FT), 1r, 3a, 1to, 3s

Bottom Line: Plus-size on the perimeter. Lacks much lower body strength – hasn't filled out at the rate you'd like to see throughout HS – will be something to monitor as he progresses to the next level. Body language can get a little sideways, at times. Will show his frustration if teammates make mistakes. Made some nice passing reads in the HC, but can get sped up pretty easily. Hasn't made significant strides with his handle...still leaves something to be desired in this dept. Better shooter than what he showed here, but a *shooter* needs to show more than what he showed here (2-8 3FG in 70 MP). Had some nice moments using his length, defensively, but wasn't setting the world on fire on this end. Not sure he's fully bought in. Type of player that seems to really struggle to string together multiple good games in a row.

Questions:

- Maturity level?
- Defensive buy-in?
- Can the handle improve enough to move him on-ball full-time?

LM to MM+

Roles: Slasher, Defender, Rebounder

Projection Range: LM to MM+ (confidence level: 55%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Link (MO): 10mp, 0p (0-1 FG), 4r (1oreb), 0a, 0to, 1b

vs. AZ Compass (AZ): 12mp, 6p (3-5 FG, 0-1 3FG, 0-2 FT), 4r (2oreb), 0a, 0to, 1b

Bottom Line: Workable hybrid forward size. Elite length. Movement can look somewhat stiff, at times...likely not a finished product as a mover/athlete. Made his presence felt as a rebounder, here — even in limited minutes. Can cause disruption as an on-ball defender. Uses his length well to contest shots. D was clearly ahead of his O in this setting. Wider outcome for him.

Questions:

- What kind of strides can he make on offense?

MM

Roles: Finisher, Glue Guy, Stretch Big

vs. Chaminade (MO): 24mp, 13p (4-5 FG, 1-1 3FG, 4-4 FT), 0r, 1a, 0to, 4b

Bottom Line: Can be a forgotten man, but a very solid role player with tools to boot. Athlete, finisher, budding floor stretcher for a 4 man. Quiet at times, but could be very good in the ivy as a complementary piece. Nothing flashy, but is super effective for that role.

LM+ to MM

Roles: Shooter, Glue Guy, High Motor, Defender, Toughness

Projection Range: LM+ to MM (confidence level: 70%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. De La Salle (CA): 21mp, 10p (3-4 FG, 3-4 3FG, 1-2 FT), 3r (1oreb), 1a, 1to, 1s

- Looks the part on the perimeter. Long, lean frame that would fill out nicely in a college weight room.
- Fluid mover who can cover ground at an above-average rate at this level. Threat to throw down some powerful dunks too.
- Excellent motor and toughness level, you could really feel his impact on the court despite him not being a featured guy. Competitor.
- Not much of a self-creator (or creator, in general). Purely an off-ball piece as it stands.
- Doesn't force the issue on O. Takes what is given to him in the gaps/
- Capable floor-stretcher. Mostly a spot-up guy in their offense. Clean jumper, looks the part.
- Really did a good job of guarding, has some versatility here. Great hands, quick and disruptive.

Bottom Line: Great sample for him here, was a highly valuable complementary piece on this team. Versatile role player that showed a strong motor and toughness level with legit tools. Was quietly one of the individual winners of the week, in addition to playing a key part in his team's 3-0 showing. Brings some physical tools and at least the idea of a 3-and-D foundation — feels overlooked, recruiting-wise.

Questions:

- Can he become more of a threat off the bounce in the HC?
- Why is the recruitment quiet? Seemed to have clearly translatable tools at his disposal and the energy/toughness that coaches love in role players.

Roles: Brute, Defender, High Motor, Rebounder, Finisher, Slasher, Toughness
Projection Range: LM+ to MM (confidence level: 80%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Notre Dame (CA): 29mp, 13p (5-10 FG, 3-3 FT), 12r (3oreb) 2a, 5to, 1b 5f vs. St. John Bosco (CA): 29mp, 8p (3-7 FG), 8r (2oreb), 1a, 5to, 5f vs. Roosevelt (CA): 30mp, 12p (6-8 FG), 5r (1oreb), 1a, 4to, 2s

- Wider than he is tall... 265-275 lbs, and not necessarily fat. Full on football build, built like a monster OL/DE/DT.
- Can really move his feet for that size. Surprisingly fast in a straight line and in tight spaces. Plays hard and has crazy stamina for a guy that large. Low center of gravity.
- Has some feel! Processed the game decently quickly and made his presence felt pretty consistently. Not just a big body.
- Fearless too, tried to punch it on Tyran Stokes (in a W). Decently explosive too.
- Strong hands. Looks to seal inside, aggressive.
- Travels a lot, needs to clean up footwork. Felt like he turned it over more here than everywhere else, could really benefit from slowing down at times.
- Can actually get up decently well for boards, putbacks, dunks. Not ground bound.
- Doesn't have great touch below the rim.
- Can dribble a bit and attack straight line space. Buried quite a few guys in the rim. Just a freight train to deal with.
- Interesting defensively, but very foul prone (partially due to aesthetic bias + how hard he played, it seemed). Doesn't let himself be screened in the POA, and can actually really guard the perimeter... actually quite unique here. How many guys that bulky can move like that? Locked up Brayden Burries on an island in a convincing manner.
- Not much of a rim protector as it stands, needs room to load to get up and contest shots at the basket, and usually was playing below others... Fouled a fair amount here.
- Beast on the boards, clears out and owns space so well.

Bottom Line: Actually, I quite enjoyed him despite the turnover numbers (which were rampant across the entire team). Was one of their more reliable guys, especially with the jarring lack of spacing. He has some feel, can move his feet like a guy 60 pounds lighter, and is a standout as far as toughness and competitiveness... Just a small ball 5 that isn't a plus rim protector for his size, which makes it tough. There's a place for him.

Questions:

- What does the outlook look like if he loses 20+ lbs.?

Roles: Defender

Projection Range: LM+ to MM (confidence level: 70%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Wasatch (UT): 23mp, 4p (1-2 FG, 0-1 3FG, 2-4 FT), 1r, 1a, 5to

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 18mp, 2p (0-7 FG, 0-2 3FG, 2-2 FT), 1r, 1a, 3to, 2s

- Not very physically imposing
- Doesn't look particularly confident letting it go from 3 as a shooter
- Pressures the ball at the POA. Was causing some real disruption vs. the Wasatch ballhandlers. Same deal with Bella Vista. Plays with grit

Bottom Line: Not very big. Not very long. Not very athletic. Not very skilled. Just "out there" most of the time on this AZ Compass squad. Really blends in, offensively. What does he do every day that warrants a HM rotation spot? Absolutely brutal week for JG.

Questions:

- What does he do to make up for his lack of elite physical tools to get by in the SEC?

Roles: Shooter

Projection Range: LM+ to MM (confidence level: 90%)

Stats (1 GP):

vs. Faith Family (TX): 20mp, 21p (7-14 FG, 7-14 3FG, 0-1 FT), 2r (1oreb), 0a, 1to

Bottom Line: The definition of one-dimensional. Can catch fire from deep. Went postal in this one, really shifting the momentum of the game. As long as you aren't asking him to do a whole lot more than C&S or come off a pin-down and let it fly, he will keep coaches happy. Utah Valley seems like a rock solid level for him. Potential transfer up guy down the line with his shooting specialty being what it is.

Roles: Shooter, High Flyer, Finisher

Projection Range: LM+ MM (confidence level: 75%)

Stats (2 GP):

vs. Wasatch (UT): 19mp, 8p (3-6 FG, 2-2 3FG, 0-0 FT), 3r, 2a, 0to

vs. Bella Vista (AZ): 21mp, 7p (2-6 FG, 0-1 3FG, 3-3 FT), 1r, 0a, 0to

Bottom Line: Quieter weekend for Vance, who just transferred in from Utah Prep. Has the shooting presence and athletic tools to become a potential impact role player at the MM level. Really just a player with freaky leaping abilities that can finish plays for you in the gaps with spot ups and cuts, and has the upside to be a solid defender.

Questions:

- Consistency?
- Ability to make others better?

Roles: Toughness, Floor General, Facilitator, High Motor, BBIQ, Creator, Crafty Finisher, Defender, Scorer

Projection Range: LM+ to MM (confidence level: 95%)

vs. Coronado (NV): 26mp, 18p (8-11 FG, 2-5 3FG, 0-0 FT), 2r (1oreb), 6a, 1to, 6s

vs. Sandra Day O'Connor (AZ): 29mp, 14p (6-10 FG, 1-4 3FG, 1-1 FT), 3r, 7a, 1to, 3s

vs. Layton Christian (UT): 29mp, 17p (6-13 FG, 5-7 3FG, 0-0 FT), 2r (2oreb), 4a, 0to, 4s

- Small lefty PG at 5'10 or so. Still baby faced and narrowly built, looks like a freshman, physically. Doesn't pass the eye-candy test, easy to overlook him just based on his appearance.
- Extremely quick, agile, and shifty. Plays low, fully leans into where he has advantages as a small guard.
- Has a visible degree of grit and fight to him, not soft in any regard. Doesn't get outside himself, but just always competes and doesn't take possessions off. Has the type of wiring needed to succeed as a small guard.
- Tremendous feel overall, especially evidenced on O by his 17:2 A:TO in 3 GP, here. One of those small guards that always feels ahead of where the defense is at, mentally, and has the speed and pace to capitalize on it consistently (especially as a passer).
- Has a ton of shake/shift to his handle. Glides with the ball in his hands and always seems to be playing off hesitations in ways that make his movement highly unpredictable.

- Has legitimate craft and touch as a finisher, can either finish at speed or find ways to manufacture windows and get defenders off-balanced when playing off two.
- Quick release on his J. Gets into a good rhythm off the catch and has some ability to hit PUJs from deep (noted as likely the swing skill, but was quite efficient here on respectable volume).
- Showed some PUJ prowess in the mid-range.
- Absolute pest on the defensive end that really pressures the ball, and boasts some incredibly active, quick hands. Opposing ball handlers really struggled with him, even handlers with far greater physical tools (as evidenced by his 13 steals in 3 games, most of which were on-ball). Really fights and competes on this end.
- Gets overwhelmed by bigger opponents – just not much he can do when it's a contest of strength/size.

Bottom Line: MVP of the weekend for the current #1 team in the country... Was one of our favorite guys here, does everything you want for a small PG to succeed. There simply has to be a landing spot at the LM/LM+ level for a guy like this, despite his size. Brings intangible and tangible winning traits to a team.

Questions:

- How much size can he reasonably add in a college weight room?
- How and when will he fill out?

vs. Notre Dame (CA): 30mp, 9p (3-8 FG, 3-6 3FG, 0-0 FT), 5r (1oreb), 2a, 4to, 2b, 2s

- Intriguing frame off the top. Well-balanced build with some strength. Appears to have plus length and big hands.

- Seemed to struggle with confidence here, got in his head. Has a nervous demeanor at times and doesn't talk much. Can hang his head. Did not make great decisions consistently.
- Flashed some glimpses of self-creation ability in the HC, though mostly in a straight line. Likes to spin himself into the paint, as he struggles to get genuine separation as a handler. Couldn't find easy looks.
- Looked somewhat hesitant to pull the trigger from deep in the 1Q vs. Bosco, but showed his ability to stretch the floor as the event progressed. Mechanics are somewhat unorthodox, cross-bodied and certainly streaky, with misses all over the place and a higher degree of volatility.
- The passing wasn't as much of a bankable skill here as it had appeared previously, struggled with the level of comp, speed, and timing. Still has some ability, though.
- Nice defensive upside given his physical and athletic tools. Made a few impressive plays on this end in every game. Generated events against quality competition, especially with a few highlight blocks that felt like they came out of nowhere.

Bottom Line: Unique player, but doesn't really have an elite go-to skill. Handles it well enough at that size to get some on ball responsibility, but was playing soft here and doesn't really talk. Didn't feel like he got much better since I first saw him at Tark in late 2023, and walked away a bit lower on him, but certainly not 'out' on a player with his potential archetype.

LM to MM

Roles: Shooter, Rebounder

Projection Range: LM to MM (confidence level: 70%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Roosevelt (CA): 31mp, 16p (7-14 FG, 1-5 3FG, 1-2 FT), 7r (2oreb), 0a, 2to, 1b, 1s vs. Notre Dame (CA): 31mp, 9p (3-10 FG, 2-6 3FG, 1-1 FT), 7r (3oreb), 2a, 2to, 2s

vs. St. John Bosco (CA): 29mp, 13p (5-7 FG, 3-4 3FG, 0-0 FT), 2r, 2a, 0to, 2s, 5pf

- Solid perimeter size and seemingly positive length.
- Not a guy where you feel his energy or motor. Pretty quiet in demeanor, here.
- Very smooth C&S stroke, pretty much pictures-perfect mechanically. Get it off easy. Best skill by far.
- Much more comfortable with him operating off the ball vs. on. Gets zero separation off the bounce.

- Handle can get shaky vs. any kind of pressure.
- Not a guy that creates for others or plays connector on O.
- Can chip in on the glass.
- May be rather limited defensively with his current movement, but didn't stand out on this end overall as a net positive or negative.

Bottom Line: Big wing shooter that can be a spot up threat and maybe a 1-2 dribble guy into big space for a PUJ, but the rest of his game is pretty basic. Projects as a role player.

Questions:

- Impacting the game without shooting?
- Making others better?
- Toughness level?

Roles: Shooter

vs. Layton Christian (UT): 15mp, 14p (5-9 FG, 4-8 3FG, 0-0 FT), 4r (2oreb), 1a, 0to

vs. Coronado (NV): 29mp, 0p (0-4 FG, 0-3 3FG), 5r (3oreb), 0a, 2to

- Decent perimeter size with a solid build, but not a great athlete.
- Does a nice job relocating and moving without the ball, finding openings.
- Beautiful shooting stroke. Legit C&S threat. Gets it off quickly.
- Makes good decisions.
- Can't really drive the ball.
- Doesn't offer a ton of defensive upside, but has some natural strength and tools to lean on.

Bottom Line: Solid role player. Primary value driver was the combination of size and shooting. He didn't have much ancillary value outside of that, outside of not being a guy that turns it over or makes mistakes when he isn't hitting shots. Name to monitor.

Questions:

- How does he impact games if his shot isn't falling?

Bottom Line: Eye-catching build. Chiseled arms with presumed plus-length. Above-average activity level. Able to cover ground and take up some space on D. Didn't come across as particularly skilled. Getting a write-up thanks to the surface level physical tools/strength. Curious to catch him again and see if there's more there vs. Duncanville (TX): 29mp, 16p (8-21 FG, 0-3 3FG, 0-1 FT), 6r (1oreb), 2a, 0to

- Undersized, bulkier lefty 4 at 6'5-6'6 who plays bigger than his height. Has plus length, which helps.
- Solid open court athlete, runs the floor hard. Lacks a ton of athletic juice but has strength and power at his disposal.
- Can be a bit of a black hole in the HC, at times, wants to put it in the basket pretty much each time he touches it.
- Strong finisher off two, can punish mismatches in the low post. Physicality, low center of gravity, and length helps here. Can play bully ball in a straight line, too.
- Shooting touch extends to the HS 3pt line, hit a few here. Pretty narrow base as a range shooter, and a longer windup.
- Quieter on defense here, overshadowed by Koa + Branch. Not the most talkative or vocal either.

Bottom Line: Tailor-made for a small conference 4 man with his ability to play inside-out and stay in attack mode. Will be just fine at that level but the archetype doesn't really translate much higher unless he really shoots and guards at a stronger level. Still, for what he is, he should have success and produce at a low to mid major.

Questions:

vs. Wasatch (UT): 19mp, 3p (1-1 FG, 1-1 3FG, 0-0 FT), 1r, 0a, 0to

Bottom Line: Still very one dimensional and incredibly skinny. Brings some size height-wise to the wing (lacks length in a big way), but desperately needs to put on some functional weight. Provides flashes of spot-up shooting ability from 3. Pretty consistent as a spot-up threat across multiple showings, but hardly looked for it. Did REMARKABLY little in 19mp vs. Wasatch, and overall. Incredibly non-productive. Doesn't appear to be on the upward trajectory, the flashes haven't turned into production. Project.

Questions:

- Why is he still here? This situation is clearly not right for his development.

vs. Sunnyslope (AZ): 26mp, 8p (3-5 FG, 0-0 3FG, 2-2 FT), 0r, 1a, 2to, 1s

- Doesn't stand out, physically. Nothing notable as far as size, length, or ATH tools, and not all that young in the body either... Egregious over-listing at 6'4, maybe 6'2 in shoes.
- Plays hard, largely. But, he had some negative body language and court presence as well, didn't respond well to others' mistakes and generally came across as frustrated when things weren't going well rather than giving energy back to his team.

- Floater game, ability to hit MRPU's and take little step backs and fades to find shooting windows.
- Was providing solid effort and engagement on D. Got his hands on some balls as a byproduct of just being invested.

Bottom Line: First impression, was largely unimpressed across the board with him, especially for an older 2027 (turns 17 in March). Very underwhelming, even against a very young Sunnyslope team. Was a total zero from beyond the arc with not much creation for others, only really showing value with his effort and mid range shotmaking flashes, but felt like a net-negative throughout with his lack of efficiency and plethora of turnovers. Came in highly touted, so don't want to right him off after a bad 3-day showing, but certainly didn't see a guy that already warranted the HM attention... has some D1 stuff to monitor for sure though.

vs. Christ the King (NY): 30mp, 2p (0-2 FG, 0-2 3FG, 2-6 FT), 4r, 7a, 0to, 2s

- Undersized, *might* be 5'10 and wiry as they come. Doesn't pass the looks test for a D1 PG, yet.
- Very quick, jitterbug type. Usually the fastest and most agile guy on the court.
- Can be a hungry scorer that fills it up in a hurry, but also disappears for LONG stretches. Attacked really early in the Perry game to the point where it felt like he would go off, but went silent.
- So shifty and can get downhill in so many ways, always keeps you guessing. Paint touch machine. Crafty with his touch around the basket.
- Sharp facilitator. Manufactures windows, deceptive, and able to hit guys in their pockets at a moment's notice.
- Not a consistent 3pt shooter, doesn't always look for it either with only 1 make on the weekend. 4/8 from the FT line in this sample, too.
- Quick, pesty hands on defense. Will have natural limitations due to how small and light he is, but he makes the most of what he has. Exceptionally quick laterally, as well.

Bottom Line: Talented with excellent feel, but just awfully small. Doesn't appear to have grown much at all, either. The ceiling will be pretty dependent on his physical development.

Questions:

- Is he a better range shooter than what he showed here??
- Can he develop a D1 body?

Roles: TBD...

vs. Wasatch (UT): 20mp, 0p (0-3 FG, 0-3 3FG, 0-0 FT), 0r, 0a, 3to

- Decent size in the backcourt.
- Stuck between a 1 and a 2. Closer to a 2 than 1, functionally.
- Even-keel, stoic court demeanor.
- Can blend in for long stretches.
- Doesn't have much depth to his game...functions as a ball-mover and spot-up shooter on this roster.
- Would love to see him generate paint touches more often.
- Lucky if he gets 1.5 rotations on his ball from deep, but continues to show he can knock down shots from range.

Bottom Line: It's not always pretty, but he finds ways to be effective/leave his mark on games. Lower ceiling player...pretty limited, overall.

Questions:

- Has he gotten significantly better throughout high school?
- What does he do at a HM level...?
- Can he make others better, or at least generate good looks for teammates? 0:5 in 2 GP, here...

Roles: TBD

Projection Range: LM to MM (confidence level: 15%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Chaminade (MO): 18mp, 3p (1-5 FG, 0-1 3FG, 1-2 FT), 3r (1oreb), 0a, 0to, 1b

vs. Duncanville (TX): 19mp, 0p (0-1 FG), 6r (1oreb), 1a, 1to, 1b

vs. Sunnyslope (AZ): 15mp, 2p (1-4 FG, 0-1 3FG, 0-0 FT), 3r (2oreb), 2a, 0to *Older for class – 2008 born.

- Great size, at least 6'9" in shoes. Quite slight, has some signs of physical maturity but clearly has some room to fill out. Notably large feet, could have a couple inches left in the tank.
- Softer big at this stage, seems to have lower confidence, quiet, not assertive. Low physicality and strength level.
- Some touch from beyond the arc, jumper didn't look broken at all. Could be a guy that stretches it, long term.
- At least he was able to take care of the ball in 50+ MP on the week (just 1 to)
- Showed some foundational feel in the post with the ability to hit little touch shots and make some passing reads (very much a euro-big)
- Not a major factor on the glass, but found a few opportunistic o-rebs.
- Relatively quiet defensively too, but size allowed him to secure a couple basic blocks.

Bottom Line: Showed a foundation as a skilled big that has post feel and some stretch potential, but lacks substance and was extremely quiet and non-productive in his showings. Much more intriguing in the flashes, but doesn't seem to have the intangibles yet. Not confident or assertive, but has talent and size to monitor. Wide range of outcomes, a project right now.

Questions:

- Toughness?
- Confidence?
- Assertiveness?
- Wiring?
- Late bloomer?

LM to LM+

Roles: Shooter, Scorer

Projection Range: LM to LM+ (confidence level: 50%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Roosevelt (CA): 30mp, 14p (5-11 FG, 3-4 3FG, 1-1 FT), 3r, 0a, 4to, 6s vs. Notre Dame (CA): 20mp, 2p (1-9 FG, 0-4 3FG, 0-0 FT), 1r, 1a, 4to, 1b, 1s, 5pf

vs. St. John Bosco (CA): 32mp, 17p (6-9 FG, 5-8 3FG, 0-0 FT), 6r, 1a, 3to, 1s

- Body has filled out a bit throughout HS. Beast of a frame, broad shouldered and ready for the next level, physically.
- Unafraid of contact on the attack, but suspect rim touch at times.
- Struggled with ball skills, turned it over with the dribble and the pass at way too high of a rate for a guy that is guard sized and doesn't make others better.
- Shoots more of a push shot with a flick of a release, has the recipe of a streaky shooter. Can really get it going from beyond the arc though.

Bottom Line: Inconsistent in his offensive production from game to game and turned it over way too much, but has a foundation of a translatable frame and a confident stroke. Not all that high on him if he can't handle or pass at a serviceable level. Still, has tools that could be valued at a LM.

Questions:

- Can he make others around him better?

Roles: Toughness, High Motor, Creator

Projection Range: LM to LM+ (confidence level: 60%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Roosevelt (CA): 31mp, 9p (3-7 FG, 1-2 3FG, 2-2 FT), 6r (1oreb), 12a, 8to, 1b

vs. Notre Dame (CA): 32mp, 6p (2-5 FG, 0-2 3FG, 2-2 FT), 3r (1oreb), 6a, 3to

vs. St. John Bosco (CA): 31mp, 17p (5-18 FG, 2-6 3FG, 5-5 FT), 6r (4oreb), 5a, 3to, 1b, 1s

- Undersized high motor guard
- Puts pressure on the rim
- Confident, assertive player. Plays with a real sense of urgency on O. Hungry to make things happen. That said, he is certainly not a low-mistake guy
- Can get caught in overdrive
- Will take chances as a passer / playmaker – can be a bit home run or strikeout

Bottom Line: Super high usage on this team. Hard to see that successfully translating to even the lowest of LMs

LM

Roles: TBD

Projection Range: LM (confidence level: 20%)

Stats (1 GP):

vs. SoCal Academy (CA): 2mp, 0p, 1to, 2pf

Bottom Line: Check in, proceeded to almost immediately get taken off the dribble and dunked on (hard) and looked out of place in his 2 minutes of playing time. Was billed as an elite prospect this fall but really struggling to see that...maybe seeing him in a different context would help get a fuller picture?

Questions:

- Toughness?
- What's his identity?

Roles: TBD

Projection Range: LM (confidence level: 20%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Notre Dame (CA): 5mp, 0p (0-0 FG), 0a, 1to, 3pf

vs. St. John Bosco (CA): 16mp, 0p (0-1 FG), 3r, 1a, 0to

vs. Roosevelt (CA): 10mp, 2p (1-1 FG), 0r, 0a, 0to, 2b

Bottom Line: Was a total zero on the weekend, jarring lack of impact. Looked passive and soft, didn't seem tough enough, nor skilled enough to consistently impact the game in his role. Could be worth a flier for a LM just due to the frame and theoretical upside, but didn't look like a D1 player here apart from the size/mobility. Couldn't stay on the floor. Highly disappointing.

Questions:

- Aside from having some size, what makes him a prospect?

Roles: Stretch Big, Finisher

Projection Range: LM (confidence level: 65%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. De La Salle (CA): 24mp, 5p (2-4 FG, 1-2 3FG, 0-0 FT), 1r, 2a, 3to, 2s

vs. Christ the King (NY): 28mp, 14p (4-7 FG, 1-2 3FG, 5-7 FT), 10r (1oreb), 2a, 4to, 2b

vs. Perry (AZ): 24mp, 6p (2-7 FG, 1-5 3FG, 1-4 FT), 3r (2oreb), 1a, 0to, 1b, 2s

Bottom Line: Very inconsistent overall, far too skinny and reliant on jumpers. Very basic acumen, overall, needs a lot of time in the oven. Some ability to finish in space, and hit an open 3 ball. Quiet defensively and on the glass (apart from the Christ the King game), but was able to make some reactive plays at the rim as a shot blocker. Inconsistent and foul prone overall though on that end, needs more substance. Overall, highlighted his faults here and didn't really rise to the occasion rather than blending in.

Questions:

- How reliant is he on tools alone? Only productive showing was against comp with little to no interior play.
- Toughness?
- Competitor? Will he learn to step up when the game gets hard?

Roles: TBD...

Projection Range: LM (confidence level: 40%)

Stats (3 GP):

vs. Roosevelt (CA): 21mp, 3p (1-5 FG, 1-1 3FG, 0-0 FT), 1r, 2a, 7to, 1b

vs. Notre Dame (CA): 24mp, 11p (4-14 FG, 2-9 3FG, 1-2 FT), 4r (1oreb), 0a, 2to

vs. St. John Bosco (CA): 25mp, 6p (2-5 FG, 0-1 3FG, 2-4 FT), 6r (1oreb), 2a, 2to

Bottom Line: Has foundational tools to play the forward spot at the LM/MM level and workable mechanics, but was largely a negative here as he was unable to find any sort of efficiency while turning it over at a high rate. Got in his head about mistakes, which there were a lot of. Not all that confident in his trajectory, struggled in a big way here
