- Lanky frame with plus-length. Has plenty of filling out to do. Needless to say, MUST gain functional strength in order to reach his potential

- Moves well...slippery without the ball. Still growing into his body. Looks like a baby deer, at times. Projects as an above-average athlete

- Good motor: runs the floor hard, cuts hard, gives multiple efforts consistently, moves with a purpose, rarely coasts, etc.

- Makes a conscious effort to not stand still off the ball and to keep moving. Hungry to get open for the most part (one in a handful of times it seems like he's just cutting for the sake of cutting)

- Appears much more comfortable off the ball vs. on. What's he currently doing with the ball - as a handler - that's of substance? On one hand, he's an efficient, assertive decision-maker with the ball in his hands; on the other, he almost plays as if he's on a dribble limit, at times. That said, he's an *excellent* passer with advanced vision and timing. Capable of making great, quick reads in the half court

- Legit C&S threat with fluid mechanics. Good range. Gets it off quick. Easy, repeatable shooting motion. This is currently his best "trick"

- More of a 'shooter' than 'scorer,' at this stage

- Good effort level on the glass. Pursues the ball / mixes it up on both ends. Shows some toughness and grit as a rebounder and as he pursues loose balls

- Often overpowered strength-wise, but already a sound team/positional defender. Knows where to be for the most part. All about strength on this end. Quick hands. Good anticipator by nature. Has the potential to be a very disruptive, effective defender at the end of the day

BOTTOM LINE

High ceiling — simply needs to fill out and continue to hone his offensive skillset

AREAS TO ADDRESS

* Getting stronger

* Becoming more confident and functional as a handler (esp. going N-S)

QUESTIONS

* Solid positional size as a HS CG, but how much growing does he have left in him? Will he best-suited as a PG if he's done growing
